

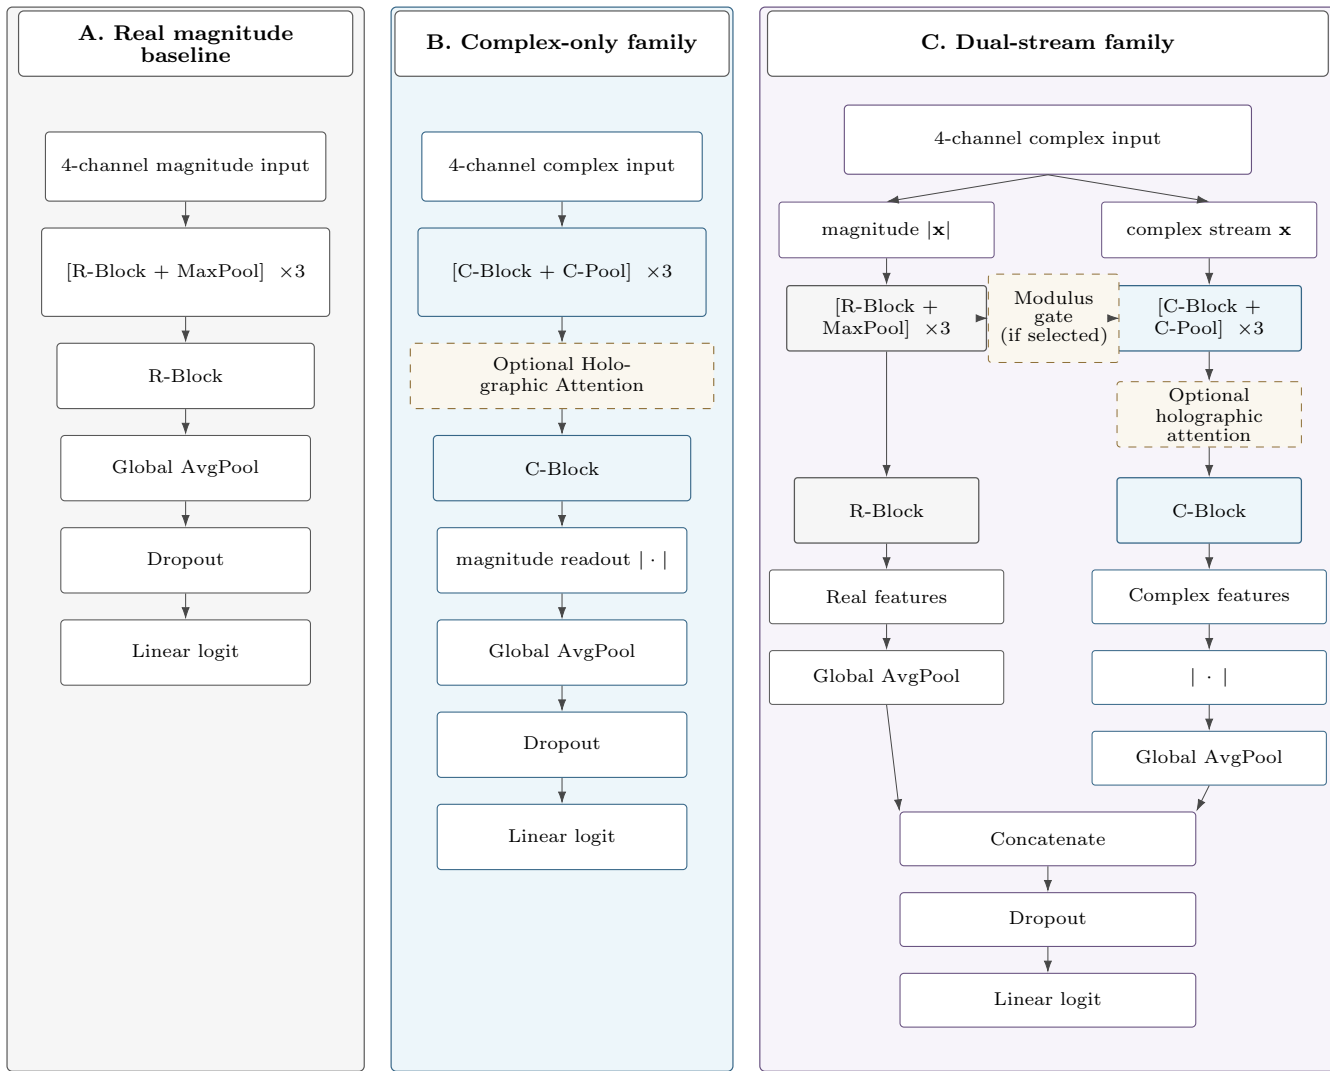

Figure 3. High-level model families evaluated in the study. The real baseline processes coil magnitudes, the complex-only family retains complex-valued features until magnitude readout, and the dual-stream family processes magnitude and complex representations in parallel before feature fusion. Repeated processing stages are shown using $\times 3$ notation.